Choices: Examining the Parts of a Sentence

The following activities challenge you to find a connection between the parts of a sentence and the world around you. Do the activity below that suits your personality best, and then share your discoveries with your class.

LINGUISTICS

Transformations
There are many different ways to analyze sentences. Find an example of another way of diagramming sentences. Then, with your teacher’s permission, give a short description of the method and provide examples for the class.

CREATIVE WRITING/DRAMA

Communication Gap
Write a dialogue for four characters. One character speaks only in declarative sentences, one only in interrogative sentences, one only in imperative sentences, and one only in exclamatory sentences. Find three or four friends to help you stage your skit for the class.

OBSERVATION/LISTENING

Kid Talk
Do you know any children between ages two and six? If so, let them do the work for this project! All you have to do is tape-record a few examples of children’s endless chattering and make a few observations. Bring your tape to class. Discuss your observations of the parts of speech favored by the children, the sentence structures mastered, their use of complements, and anything else you notice. If other students choose this project, gather your notes together and make a time line of them, arranging them in order of each child’s age. What patterns do you notice?

ANIMATION

Cartoon Madness
Using either a computer program or a flip book, create an animation of a sentence being created, corrected, and edited. Since animation is known for its humor, add a few laughs to your footage. For instance, instead of just crossing out a word, have another word eat it! You might want to include sound effects or recordings for atmosphere.

STYLE

K.I.S.
Those letters stand for “Keep it simple!” Some writers follow this advice by using the simple style. The simple style aims at keeping the subject, verb, and complement together. In the simple style, no adjectives, adverbs, or prepositional phrases come between these three basic elements of the sentence. Try it. Take a piece of your writing or a passage from a published work. Then, rewrite it in the simple style. Post both versions of the writing selection so that everyone in the class can have a chance to compare them.

DESIGN

Fine Form
Create forms for your classmates to use as they analyze the sentence structure of their own writings. Use all the categories that you have studied so far: subjects, verbs, prepositional phrases, and kinds of sentences. Also, make a column for the number of words in each sentence. Then, make copies of your chart for all your classmates.

ROLE PLAY

Love or Money?
With a partner, create and perform a skit in which a stern businessperson tries to explain business writing to a rather wild poet. The poet has a fixation on sentence fragments; however, the business person most decidedly does not harbor such idiosyncrasies. Create a somewhat friendly disagreement between the two.

ETYMOLOGY

Keep on the Subject
Investigate the words subject and predicate. What are their roots? How many meanings does each have? What are they? What other words have the same roots? Write a memo detailing your findings. Give everyone in the class a copy.
Sentences and Sentence Fragments

A sentence is a word group that contains a subject and a verb and that expresses a complete thought.

A sentence fragment is a word or word group that is capitalized and punctuated as a sentence but that does not contain both a subject and a verb or that does not express a complete thought.

Finding the Subject

The subject of a verb is never in a prepositional phrase.

Do not mistake a noun or pronoun in a prepositional phrase for the subject of a sentence.

Example: Some of the apples were rotten.

The word there or here may begin a sentence, but it is almost never the subject.

Example: Here comes the train.

Questions usually begin with a verb, a helping verb, or a word such as what, when, where, how, or why. In most cases, the subject follows the verb or part of the verb phrase.

Example: Is his brother coming with us?

Exercise In the following sentences, underline the verb twice and the subject once.

Objects: Direct Objects

An object of a verb is a noun, pronoun, or word group that completes the meaning of a transitive verb—a verb that expresses an action directed toward a person, a place, a thing, or an idea.

A direct object is a noun, pronoun, or word group that tells who or what receives the action of a transitive verb or shows the result of the action.

A direct object answers the question “Whom?” or “What?” after a transitive verb.

EXAMPLES

I gave the books to Harrison. [Gave what? Books.]

Don't forget Hans and Kate. [Forget whom? Hans and Kate.]

EXERCISE A Decide whether the underlined words in the following sentences are direct objects. If the word is a direct object, write DO above the word. If it is not a direct object, write NDO.

Example 1. Medieval knights often rescued people in danger.

1. The nobles wore steel armor and helmets.

14. It attacked people of all ages.

15. Medieval doctors found no cure for the plague.
Objects: Indirect Objects

An object of a verb is a noun, pronoun, or word group that completes the meaning of a transitive verb—a verb that expresses an action directed toward a person, a place, a thing, or an idea.

An indirect object is a noun, pronoun, or word group that often appears in sentences containing direct objects. An indirect object tells to whom or to what (or for whom or for what) the action of a transitive verb is done.

EXAMPLES
Hand her the clean sheets, please. [Hand the sheets to whom? Her.]

Play Kim and me a tune. [Play a tune for whom? Kim and me.]

EXERCISE A
Decide whether the underlined words in the following sentences are direct objects or indirect objects. If the word is a direct object, write DO above the word. If it is an indirect object, write IO.

Example 1. Jill handed Jack the bucket.

Underline the indirect objects in the following sentences.

Example 1. Fred sent the college his application.

11. Why don’t you tell us a story?

12. Aunt Maria brought me a souvenir from Thailand.

13. The driver told the officer his version of the accident.

14. Please offer cousin Tina my condolences.

15. Lester loaned Miranda a sweater.
Objects: Direct and Indirect Objects

2j. A direct object is a noun, pronoun, or word group that tells who or what receives the action of a transitive verb or shows the result of the action.

A direct object answers the question “Whom?” or “What?” after a transitive verb.

EXAMPLE We sent some flowers to Aunt Grace. [Sent what? Flowers.]

2k. An indirect object is a noun, pronoun, or word group that often appears in sentences containing direct objects. An indirect object tells to whom or to what (or for whom or for what) the action of a transitive verb is done.

EXAMPLE Russell offered her the tickets. [Offered the tickets to whom? Her.]

Exercise A Decide whether the underlined words in the following sentences are direct objects or indirect objects. Above each object, write DO for direct object or IO for indirect object.

Example 1. Please take him these sandwiches.

1. The committee chairperson gave her the gavel.
2. Our pool’s lifeguard left Manuelo the free passes.
3. The interview will give Emily a chance to visit the college.
4. The algebra teacher lent her a new ruler.
5. Aerobic dancing provided us an opportunity for vigorous exercise.
6. The track star jumped hurdles and ran relays during the meet.
7. The pet store owner gave the puppy a bone.
8. The doctor prescribed penicillin for the child’s illness.
9. The counselor offered the students some advice.
10. Their discovery of radium and polonium earned Pierre and Marie Curie the Nobel Prize in physics.

Exercise B In the following sentences, underline the indirect objects once and the direct objects twice. Not every sentence contains an indirect object.

Example 1. She sent me a book about woodworking.

11. Kareem taught his sister an African American folk song.
12. The president signed the energy bill after the congressional vote.
13. The Lions Club awarded Mrs. Rosa a silver tray for community service.
14. The tree branch struck the car’s windshield with a crash.
15. Toni Morrison read the audience an excerpt from her novel.
Parts of a Sentence

2a. A sentence is a word group that contains a subject and a verb and that expresses a complete thought.

2b. Sentences consist of two basic parts: subjects and predicates. Sentences may contain complements, such as subject complements: predicate nominatives and predicate adjectives; or objects of verbs: direct objects and indirect objects.

EXERCISE

Decide whether the underlined words in the following sentences are predicate nominatives, predicate adjectives, direct objects, or indirect objects. Above each underlined word, write PN for predicate nominative, PA for predicate adjective, DO for direct object, or IO for indirect object.

Example 1. After he gave her a rowing lesson, he felt tired.

1. Ruth became the new treasurer for the bicycle club.
2. Felix wrote Martha a long letter while she was away.
3. The students seemed tired after the long lecture.
4. We finished our geometry homework before dinner.
5. The principal offered the seniors some good advice about choosing a college.
6. Has the coach given the players their gloves?
7. The salad tasted better after you added the horseradish.
8. The winner of this year’s poetry competition was Carlita.
9. The sophomores chose a new team name.
10. What a great leader he became!
11. The magician appeared nervous during the beginning of her performance.
12. Will Jacqueline be our new tutor?
13. Hear this beautiful poem by Emily Dickinson.
14. Are the counselors going to send us a list of recommended books?
15. We went to the shopping mall and bought some candles and a vase.
16. Ron gave me some paint, a few brushes, and a large pad to practice with.
17. The soup that my grandmother made smells spicy.
18. When will Trevor become a performer?
19. The snow felt cold, but we continued to play outside.
20. Are those black birds with yellow spots starlings?
Depending on its purpose, a sentence may be classified as declarative, imperative, interrogative, or exclamatory.

(1) A declarative sentence makes a statement and ends with a period.

   EXAMPLE  I wonder how the fans will react to our victory.

(2) An imperative sentence gives a command or makes a request. Most imperative sentences end with a period. A strong command ends with an exclamation point.

   EXAMPLES Please tell the coach that I’ll be a little late. Look at that score!

(3) An interrogative sentence asks a question and ends with a question mark.

   EXAMPLE  Are you coming to the celebration at the coach’s house tonight?

(4) An exclamatory sentence shows excitement or expresses strong feeling and ends with an exclamation point.

   EXAMPLE  We finally beat the Cougars!

EXERCISE  Punctuate each of the following sentences with an appropriate end mark. Then, on the line provided, classify each sentence by writing DECL for declarative, IMP for imperative, INT for interrogative, or EXCL for exclamatory.

Example  IMP  1. What a great team!

   ___ 1. How were we able to win
   ___ 2. We won by using our superior skill and stamina
   ___ 3. Stop gloating
   ___ 4. Oh, why shouldn’t we brag just a bit
   ___ 5. It’s never becoming to brag
   ___ 6. I can’t believe we won
   ___ 7. Keep your excitement to yourself
   ___ 8. Do you hear that applause
   ___ 9. It’s so loud
   ___10. Let’s go accept our trophy
Review A: Sentences and Sentence Fragments

EXERCISE Identify each of the following groups of words as a sentence or a sentence fragment. On the line provided, write S if the group of words is a sentence or F if it is a fragment.

20. The friendly police chief gave my friends a room for the night in the local jail.
Review C: Sentence Parts

Exercise A  In each of the following sentences, underline the simple subject once and the verb twice. If the subject is understood, write it in parentheses before the sentence. Be sure to include all parts of a verb phrase and all parts of a compound subject or verb.

Example (You)

1. Come with me to buy Mother’s birthday present, please.

1. How far in advance do you usually shop for birthday presents?
2. In my opinion, birthdays are very important occasions.
3. Gifts for others should reflect their tastes, not yours.
4. One must consider the recipients’ interests carefully.
5. Not many of my relatives share my sister’s interests or like her taste.
6. Her choice of gift for a grandparent or an aunt or an uncle is often inappropriate.
7. Neither subtle hints nor candid suggestions penetrate her consciousness.
8. Fortunately, all of us recognize the thought behind the present.
9. Tell me your opinions about birthday gifts.
10. Would you consider a job as a personal shopper?

Exercise B  Each of the following sentences contains at least one complement. Underline each complement, and above the complement, indicate the type of complement it is by writing PA for predicate adjective, PN for predicate nominative, DO for direct object, or IO for indirect object.

Example 1. Did you send Flora a thank-you note?

11. The reading assignment was an informative article about medical ethics.
12. The haiku is a major form of Japanese verse.
13. The last mile of a ten-mile hike always seems longest.

___ 18. In case of emergency, dial this number
___ 19. What is the correct English translation of that Latin expression
___ 20. If you have any questions, be sure to ask your teacher
There was a summer in my life when the only creature that seemed lovelier to me than a largemouth bass was Sheila Mant. I was fourteen. The Mants had rented the cottage next to ours on the river; with their parties, their frantic games of softball, their constant comings and goings, they appeared to me denizens of a brilliant existence. “Too noisy by half,” my mother quickly decided, but I would have given anything to be invited to one of their parties . . .

Sheila was the middle daughter—at seventeen, all but out of reach. She would spend her days sunbathing on a float my Uncle Sierbert had moored in their cove, and before July was over I had learned all her moods. If she lay flat on the diving board with her hand trailing idly in the water, she was pensive, not to be disturbed. On her side, her head propped up by her arm, she was observant, considering those around her with a look that seemed queenly and severe. Sitting up, arms tucked around her long, suntanned legs, she was approachable, but barely, and it was only in those glorious moments when she stretched herself prior to entering the water that her various suitors found the courage to come near.

—from “The Bass, the River, and Sheila Mant” by W. D. Wetherell

Writing Application: Letter

A friend whispers to you, “That guy is.” Undoubtedly, you’ll be waiting for your friend to complete the sentence, since the group of words does not express a complete thought—despite the presence of a subject and verb. To make sense, the group of words needs a predicate nominative or predicate adjective that identifies or describes the subject guy.

Predicate Nominative

That guy is captain of the basketball team.

Predicate Adjective

That guy is absolutely amazing on the court.

Remember that be is only one of several verbs that can link a subject and a predicate adjective or predicate nominative. Other linking verbs include appear, become, feel, look, remain, and seem.

Writing Activity

You have just been told that an eccentric aunt is giving away her fortune to relatives she considers deserving of her money. You’ve never met this aunt. You decide to write a detailed letter describing yourself, hoping that she will consider you worthy of a financial gift. Your letter should include at least five predicate nominatives, five predicate adjectives, and two linking verbs other than be.

Prewriting

You’re quite an expert on the letter’s topic: yourself. However, it may still help you to brainstorm for points you want to make about the topic. Jot down all the ideas that come to your mind without stopping to evaluate them. Then, choose the most significant points that you will develop and prioritize them from most important to least important.

Writing

Write a draft of the letter with the framework for a persuasive essay in mind. Begin with an attention-grabbing statement of your opinion that you’re worthy of the financial gift. Discuss the reasons, accompanied by explanations and evidence, that you think yourself worthy. Conclude the letter with a restatement of your opinion.

Revising

Read the draft to a friend. Ask him or her whether there are enough reasons to convince your audience (the aunt) and whether any of the reasons could be made stronger. Check that you have used at least five predicate nominatives, five predicate adjectives, and two linking verbs other than be. Ask yourself whether any of the adjectives in the draft could be replaced with a more descriptive or precise word.

Publishing

When you’re trying to impress someone, your writing should be completely error-free. Read your draft slowly to identify errors in grammar, usage, spelling, capitalization, and punctuation. Finally, check to make sure that you have followed the proper format for a personal letter. Continue revising this personal letter until you consider it completely polished.

Extending Your Writing

Add your final letter to an anthology of letters you’ve written. You will probably find these letters quite interesting to read one or two years from now, as they are written records of how you viewed yourself at this present stage of your life. Gather the letters into a booklet and, if appropriate, share them with your classmates.
Chapter 2: The Parts of a Sentence, pp. 30–56
Choices: Examining the Parts of a Sentence, p. 30

Choices activities are designed to extend and enrich students' understanding of grammar, usage, and mechanics and to take learners beyond traditional classroom instruction. To use the Choices worksheet, have each student pick an activity that interests him or her. In some cases, you may wish to assign an activity to a particular student or group of students. You may also want to request that students get your approval for the activities they choose. Establish guidelines for what constitutes successful completion of an activity. Then, help students plan how they will share their work with the rest of the class.

Choices activities can be scored with a pass-fail grade or treated as bonus-point projects. Those activities that require students to research or create a certain number of items might be graded in a traditional manner.

EXERCISE B

Answers will vary. A sample response is given.

Many of the predicate nominatives and predicate adjectives are used either to state a fact or express an opinion. They follow the verbs seemed and appeared. The predicate nominatives and predicate adjectives that follow the verb was either give factual information about a character (“fourteen,” “middle daughter”) or give information about what the character named Sheila feels under certain conditions (“pensive,” “observant,” “approachable”).

EXERCISE C

Answers will vary. A sample response is given.

The first time Reginald entered the classroom he appeared gigantic. His frame seemed to fill the doorway. From the beginning, it was apparent that he wasn’t your typical new student arriving halfway through the year. He became even more mythical when he opened his mouth to speak. His words of self-introduction, oozing confidence, rolled out of his throat into the room, and became something you could grab. Everyone in the class was entranced. And the enchantment remained intact until Mr. Galliano spoke his standard line of welcome. That’s when I realized I was sitting there with my mouth wide open and my hand suspended in midair holding my pencil. I must have looked quite the idiot.

EXERCISE D

Answers will vary but should reflect the student’s writing in Exercise C. A sample response is given.

1. PREDICATE NOMINATIVES

   student—he something—words

   idiot—I

   PREDICATE ADJECTIVES

   gigantic—he apparent—it

   mythical—he entranced—everyone

   intact—enchantment

2. The personal nature of this narrative is emphasized by the use of predicate nominatives and predicate adjectives, especially after the verbs seem and appear. They help the reader realize that the narrator is expressing an interpretation of an event.
Writing Application: Letter, p. 56

Writing Applications are designed to provide students immediate composition practice in using key concepts taught in each chapter of the Language and Sentence Skills Practice booklet. You may wish to evaluate student responses to these assignments as you do any other writing that students produce. To save grading time, however, you may want to use the following scoring rubric.

Scoring Rubric

At least five predicate nominatives and five predicate adjectives are used.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>1</th>
<th>2</th>
<th>3</th>
<th>4</th>
<th>5</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

At least two linking verbs other than be are used.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>1</th>
<th>2</th>
<th>3</th>
<th>4</th>
<th>5</th>
</tr>
